Foreword

EVERY Colonel in Kentucky, or outside the boundary lines of the state, is interested in a fellow-Kentuckian. He would like to know him personally, meet him and greet him and give him the glad hand. He would like to know his occupation and his business address, his faults, his weaknesses, and above all, his success. He would wish to extend help and encouragement when such are needed. He would like to boost him a round up the ladder of success. There is a feeling of kinship, comradeship and love among Kentuckians, one for the other, that can never die. There is within each of us, that love of native land, for old memories, for girlhood and boyhood days, that unites within us a divine feeling of sympathy and kindness, which remains with us no matter where we go.

The Kentucky Colonels Club is being formed to help you as a Kentucky Colonel to attain some of these ideals mentioned above. Only by united effort in organization can we hope to render the greatest amount of service. "United we stand" is the symbol of our great Commonwealth, the hope of a mighty nation, and the inspiration of the Kentucky Colonels Club.

Every Colonel is invited to affiliate with this Club, which has for its aim and purpose greater service. United we shall create an incentive, and foster a mutual interest in the welfare of Kentucky. This Club will provide the means of uniting all Colonels socially, and others eminent in the welfare of the State, and will co-operate in upholding and maintaining high professional standards in State, social and economic institutions. It will become an important factor for the discussion of reports, topics, and questions relative to a better government "of the people, by the people, and for the people."

It is hoped, through the compilation of this book that these ideals may be more surely realized, and the latent powers of all Colonels united.

We are deeply indebted to Colonel T. W. Vinson, and Colonel Robert Dixon, Jr., and others, whose contributions and painstaking efforts have made the "Handbook" possible.

The Responsibilities of a Kentucky Colonel

By Oliver Vickery

Today, our Colonel is in command of the forces of nature, fighting successfully in his battle with the elements, and bravely standing guard day and night on the positive side of scientific victory. The modern Colonel has inherited the bugle call of "Progress", and proudly takes his post on the side of "Right" rather than on the side of "Might" in the great conquest of circumstances to which we are subject.

The modern Colonel is a man of intelligence, action, energy and alert to the needs of his time. With his help and "Aides" "General Tradition" is shoved into the rear ranks, and the stalwart "General Progress" takes command and immediately relieves "General Disability" who has been the victim of "General Grouch" and hard put on the left wing. "General Grouch" has been well trained from infancy in the old school, and is now on the defensive, but equipped with runners and ammunition from the camp of "General Nuisance." His methods are putrid with slime, slinking around corners pouring poison into the minds of innocents with his "Couriers." "General Grouch" is usually clothed in sheepskin, but "coming events cast their shadows before," and with the aid of "General Thought," who is advancing rapidly from the rear, the capture of "General Grouch" is inevitable.

The modern Colonel is holding high the torch of enlightenment in progress, education, agriculture, medicine, finance, commerce and political economy. Our Colonel is also the Captain of his commands, the arbiter of his consciousness and the pilot of his soul. His regiments are scattered over the face of the earth. He accepts humbly and unconditionally his challenge and responsibilities. As a leader he proudly takes his place in the business of the world, with the thought always uppermost, that he will prove not only worthy of his commission, but an inspiration to other Kentuckians and a credit to his God.

A Kentucky Colonel

By Mary Lee Jackson

Of Kentucky it might be truly said, "The age of romance has not ceased." One might associate Kentucky with romances equaling in splendor those of the Arabian Nights or compare her heroic men and their deeds of chivalry to those knights of the Court of King Arthur.

What child has not sat athrill, with shining eyes, listening to stories told of the beauties of the State—the fast horses, fine tobacco, beautiful women, gallant gentlemen, and, if they were older, of the delicious mint juleps—near-relics of a bygone day.

His eyes pictured the great houses in which these most fortunate beings lived, moved and had their being—the manor houses with their great, open fireplaces, crowds of negro servants, bounteous larders and general air of good living—hospitality that has ever been synonymous with the name, "KENTUCKY." Ever around the great houses were to be found the cabins of the negroes and strains of music always heard. There, too, were delightful odors of cooking things and, if one watched closely, one might even have seen a turbaned mammy. The lord of this high estate was the "Cunnel."

As the title, "Sir Knight," was so fittingly bestowed on those heroes who fought, bled and died for ideals of their own, born probably of some fancy of their king, so the honor has come through the ages to be given those of our own brave who have fought for their ideals in this great, new country of ours. From the time of the first commissioned Colonel by the first Governor of our Commonwealth, on to the present, our Colonel is a fighter, not now so much as in actual warfare as in a battle against those things of the unseen, which menace everyday living. Although there are today many men bearing this honorary title, each of them is hidden behind our romantic dream-Colonel of other days.

Usually attired in white duck from May till October, with perhaps a wide-brimmed black hat and flowing black tie—and carrying a cane—our Colonel of "ye olden time" is pictured as a man of stately carriage, bearing himself with military precision, from his straight shoulders to the cut of the little white goatee on his determined chin. One, looking into the firm lines of his resolute face, could imagine him as never abandoning a purpose or being turned aside when once he formed an opinion. He was most courtly to the ladies, but the children were ever in awe of him, and the little darkies would shake in their shoes when he frowned. Ever an important personage in the eyes of His Excellency, the Governor, this grand old man of our nobility was never absent from a function of State, being always seen in the full-dress uniform of the aide.

He possessed the prime essential in the morals of true Kentucky sons—courtesy. His heart felt for the afflictions and distresses of everyone, and his hand gave in proportion to his purse, or more. The true son of Kentucky, being a thoroughbred, he had those symbols of a high, generous spirit—fine eyes and erect bearing, taking all the blows of fate, never whining. Keeping his troubles to himself, he was unashamed at the bar of his own soul. His slogan was, "Live pure, speak truth, right wrong, follow the king, else—wherefore born?"

And so, the torch is thrown—from the shadowy past to the sons of the living present—as long as memory's lanes are open, the love of Kentucky soil will stay with her people—the "little cabin floors" are going—most of them gone—but even so—with bursting hearts and tear-dimmed eyes—to the sons and daughters of the Bluegrass, the Pennyrile, the Knobs and the Purchase will come with all the pathos of the beautiful past, the splendor of the living present and on into the unknown future the pictures brought to mind by this haunting strain, ever true.

"The sun shines bright in my old Kentucky Home"—The sun is bright in Old Kentucky—memory's sun—shining in the soul of those carrying on—from those gone into the Afterwhile —and so it is that we must keep before us the lives of those of nature's noblemen who are symbolic of that Kingdom of Peace—KENTUCKY.

In Old Kentucky

(As Was)

It's up in old Kentucky,
  Where they never have the blues;
Where the Captain kills the Colonel,
  And the Colonel kills the booze;
Where the horses they are pretty,
  And the women, they are, too!
Where they shoot you just for pastime,
  When there's nothing else to do.

Where the blood it flows like water,
  And the bullets fly like hail;
Where every pistol has a pocket,
  And every coat a tail;
Where they always hang the jury,
  But they never hang the man;
Where you call a man a liar—
  And then get home if you can.

Where you go out in the morning,
  Just to give your health a chance—
And they bring you home at nightfall
  With buckshot in your pants;
Where the owl's afraid to holler,
  And the birds don't dare to sing—
For it's hell in old Kentucky,
  Where they shoot 'em on the wing.

—Anonymous.

In Old Kentucky

(As Is)

It's up in old Kentucky
  Where once the bullets flew,
And the green and waving verdure
  Felt the fall of crimson dew.
The bullets have ceased their whizzing,
  And the pistol's hanging high,
For up in old Kentucky
  It is very, very "dry."

It's up in old Kentucky
  Where the clouds refuse to rain,
And the sun it shines the hottest,
  And the crops are on the wane;
Where the Captains and the Colonels
  And everybody swore—
It's "drier" in Kentucky
  Than it's ever been before.

It's up in old Kentucky
  Where once they "rolled 'em high,"
Now they meet and pray for "dampness"
  Beneath a cloudless sky;
Where the bluegrass it is withered,
  Likewise the corn and rye,
For it's hell in old Kentucky,
  Where everything's gone dry.

—Judge J. B. Wyatt.

Sentiment

I must admit—although it hurts—
That I was born unlucky;
I've never, literally, had
A home in old Kentucky.
And yet I feel, should wayward chance
Direct my steps to roam there,
I'd meet you all and greet you all—
And find myself at home there!
